We had much to say about Cloaks last week. The crowds who visited this department were the gainers. They found just what we intimated would be found--a vast and brilliant display of newness in Winter Garments at prices a full half less than had been asked for goods of less merit all season. The quantity was vast, but the piles soon melted away at the bargain prices named. Monday we shall be ready for you again. Our Mr. Wasson, now in New York, writes: "Keep the ball rolling. Tell the people about Cloaks for next week. We can go one better than last week's offering. Have found just what is wanted in Cloak kind, and prices still better than last week's offering." Another lot of new Winter Jackets, Czarina, Alpine, Victoria, Princess, English Walking Jackets and Reefers. Materials everything in newness. Cheviots, English Pilot Cloth, Camel's-hair Mixtures, Chinchilla Beaver, and Wide-Wale Chevron.

Also another lot of Seal Plush Jackets to sell at $8.90, and Long Wraps at $14.90. Material and finish equal to anything offered this season at 50 per cent. more money. Children's and Misses' Wraps-The offering in this department leaves no room for controversy. Style, material and vastness of assortment at the marvelous bargain prices named meets every want. Baby Wear-Here again we can meet your every want, style, material and price. Bargain figures on every garment.

FURS—We name all the fashionable Furs. Capes in Seal, Otter, Marten, Beaver, Monkey, Astrachan, Nutria, Hare and Coney. Muffs to match.

Collars and Stoles in all the leading furs. Children's Furs-And we give you prices here a full 50 per cent. under November's asking. Feather Ruffs and Boas. MITITITERY—Trimmed Pattern Hats. We make price $10 choice for goods that have sold at from $18 to $30. Our selection of cheaper goods is still good. Prices here half and less than half November's prices---$2, $2.50, $3, or about 50 cents a step up to $7.50. And in Untrimmed Hats we make one lot, about twenty shapes, black and colored, at 45c. No such prices named in this market for goods of equal quality. A deep cut price on Trimmings to correspond. Black Birds at 39 cents, a 65-cent quality. A lot of Colored Birds go from 60 and 85 cents to 33 cents, and a 25-cent Wing to 10 cents. Ostrich Tips, extra quality, 73 cents a bunch. Baby Caps in Plush, Silk, Cashmere, etc. A very fine Plush Cap, $1; a good seller last week at $1.50.

DRESS GOODS--Just half price for High Art Novelties. Robe and Panel Garnitures of this season's importation. New Plaids, Serges and Henriettas for Monday.

SEAL SKIN GARMENTS.

JACKETS, WRAPS and CAPES-Matchless qualities. A princely Christmas Gift. At prices much lower than you have had opportunity to buy in many seasons past. We have determined to close them, and make prices now, and not at the close of the season. Comparison invited.

will accompany him; Nelson is at Owen's quadrupeds. It is not anticipated that the lake with Bayley. When Merriam goes valley itself will afford many examples of out he will be accompanied by an expert from the entomological division to look up the bugs. The two parties will meet at Paramint, a small mining village in the Peramint range, and work will then begin throwing something over them. Doubtless, in earnest, the manner of its prosecution being thus: Each party will have a wagon, which it will utilize as a base of operations, leaving it in a spot where there is water, and making excursions of a few days each with pack-mules to carry the baggage and provisions. For convenience in this method of procedure the expedition will naturally divide itself up into half a dozen little parties, a naturalist, a packer and a mule or burro making a very effective working gang. The amount one mule can carry is simply astonishing; but men have to be specially hired for their exthem from their baked prisons. The entomologist of the expedition will devote his atmospherical the desert beetles, ants, mennt. With the assistance of this extraor-dinary knot, properly tied, a mule can Very particular attention will b easily get along all day, over rough country, with such a lead as two 150-pound sacks of "sow-belly" pork, one sack of flour, a chest of drawers for specimens, a | they will be packed in the chests of drawers, tank of alcohol, a couple of beds and other | which are very bard to carry on mule-back.

The first thing done will be to locate all the places where water is to be found. Hundred of people have lost their lives in Death valley through starting off in the morning without knowing where they were going to find water at night. There will be no such foolishness as that indulged in by the expedition. With every precaution a sufficient amount of suffering will of necessity have to be undergone. Water :s the great desideratum in that horrible place, where the air is much drier than that of the Sahara, and the heat so great as to put the body through a sort of evaporating process, such as that to which a dried apple is artificially subjected. So rapid is this evaporation of the bodily moisture that three gallons of water a day are absolutely neces-sary for each individual, instead of the three pints one ordinarily consumes. If one were to sit down in the desert all day ong and do nothing but drink water he would still feel thirsty. Even with a supply of three gallons a day, the blood of the traveler across the waste becomes thickened, the features grow thin and peaked. treadful constipation sets in, and fever breatens madness. In crossing the valy one cannot very well carry with more than enough water for day's supply. The only way to do is to hurry over and try to reach the other side—only about fifteen miles istant-before one succumbs for want of drink. If you know precisely in which of the gorges of the mountains springs are to be found, it is well enough, but if you are not certain on this point you are likely to ome so exhausted, after traveling up to the heads of one or two gorges, fruitlessly, as to find nothing better to do than to lie down and die the most horrible of deaths. for will not need burial, for your body will not decay, but will simply be shriveled up to a mummy and lie there in the Valley of Death to all eternity, imperishable, staring up at the burning sky. Here and there, all over the awful plain of salt and atkali are scattered the dried bodies of men and animals, preserved for all ages to come. During the mining fever in that neighborgood, from 1872 to 1878, hundreds of people were lost in trying to get across. You may have heard of an "alkali sink." That is what Death valley is. As has been said, the plain of the valley is below the level of the sea, and the alkaline river flowing into it at certain seasons from the Amargosa desert deposits its alkali in the crust, through which the foot, in stepping, breaks into the abominable paste beneath.

WHAT THE EXPEDITION WILL DO. It will be the work of the expedition to kill and capture every sort of living creature that can be found in Death valley and its surrounding region. Every specimen of animal life to be discovered there will be esented by from a dozen to a score of specimens in the collection which will be brought back to Washington. Mammals, birds, reptiles and batrachians will all be grist to the mill of the naturalists. It is expected that many new species will be secured, such as are not at present known to science. The birds will be shot and the mammals will be trapped at night. All of the gentlemen engaged in this exploration are most expert trappers, and they will carry with them many dozens of small steel-wire contrivances of a sort that are found most upon him for charitable contributions. fective in the capture of all kinds of little | "The Lord loves a cheerful giver."

a valuable assortment will be secured of lizards of different colors, and of the pe culiar rattlesnakes with horns over their eyes, which belong in that country. There are no frogs there, it is supposed, but there are some queer desert toads that live in "washes" where there is water for part of each year. When the water dries the birds, which, as soon as shot, will be carefully measured in the flesh, skinned and stuffed on the spot. After being stuffed until they are dry. Then they will be put into small boxes with cotton-wool and sent to Washington whenever a chance offers. Necessarily communication will have to be constantly kept up with civilization, inasmuch as enough provisions cannot be carried along at a load in the wagons to last for the entire season. The town called Keeler, at Owen's lake, will be the intermediate point utilized between the expedition and the world. All the mammals captured will be treated just like the birds. The reptiles will be put at once into alcohol. Greatest interest will be telt in discovering what forms of life are able to exist in so arid a country. Such vegetable life as is found there will afford the botanist material for his collection. Incidentally, the mountains will be explored and covered by the operations of the parties. It is very likely that the explorers, in crossing the alkali crust, will be obliged to resort to an expedient adopted before for the purpose -namely, that of improvising a sort of snow-shoe woven of willow withes, with gunny-sacks over them and bound upon

The first white man who ever visited Death valley was Captain Bendire, who told your correspondent yesterday that on the occasion referred to, in 1869, he did not attempt to cross the valley, but simply skirted around its edge, as he expressed it "like a cat on the edge of a plate of hot mush." The Captain is now connected with the Smithsonian Institution. Notwithstanding his experience, he expressed a regret that he was not going to accompany the expedition, which, he thought. promised such interesting results. In the course of the exploration, by the way, the ascent is to be made of Mount Whitney, west of Owen's lake, which is nearly three miles high, being the highest peak of the Sierra Nevada range, and a thorough study will be made of its flora and fauna. Capt. Bendire, while doing the act of the cat on the edge of the plate of mush, came across only three dried mummies of men in Death

Investigation will be made by the expedition of the strange fishes that inhabit certain springs at the south end of Death valley. These are deep pools, and in them are found fish, unknown elsewhere in the world, which have no eyes. The whole country thereabout is certainly a most extraordinary one. Seventy miles south of the valley is the so-called "Devil's Playground"-a dreadful desert, across which a wind like a furnace blast continually blows, the black lava and hot sand of its great plain radiating back the sun's heat so that the whole landscape is tremulous to the eye. Southeast of Death valley one hundred miles is "Dead mountain," on the side of which thermometers have registered 1400 in the shade. On the east side the precipitous rocks are much broken up, and the sun shining on their white points and ingles makes the mountain look from a distance as if whole conventions of ghosts were assembled upon it. The Indians believe, on this account, that the mountain is the abode of their dead warriors. Hence RENE BACHE. the name.

PERSONAL AND SOCIETY.

[All society and personal notes for the Sunday issue of the Journal, to secure publication, must be in the hands of the city editor by Saturday noon.

Many of the past week's social events have been in honor of Mrs. Harrison, whose presence, after an absence of nearly two years, has been warmly welcomed by her many friends and acquaintances. The Katharine Merrill Club gave a very pleasant reception yesterday afternoon at the residence of Miss Merrill, on North Tennessee street, in honor of Mrs. Harrison, who is one of the members of the club. The organization numbers some sixty members, and these, with presidents of the several women's clubs and Art Association. were among those invited. The guests were received by Miss Merrill, Mrs. Harrison, Mrs. McKee, Mrs. H. H. Hanna, Mrs.

H. R. Allen and Mrs. J. L. Kitchen, president of the club. After the friends had assembled they listened to an admirable paper by Mr. James Whitcomb Riley, on "Dialects"—the same which was read before the Gentlemen's Liteary Club some weeks ago. After the reading light refreshments were served. Mrs. John L. Griffiths and Mrs. John R. Wilson presided at the daintily-appointed tea-table, and the guests were served by the young ladies who are members of the club. The house was beautifully decorated with palms, and ferns and flowers. The club was organized five years ago and has attained the reputation of being one of the strongest literary clubs in the city, and the reception yesterday was similar to the reunions which the members sometimes have, though somewhat more elaborate. A musicale was given, Monday evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Wellner, Woodruff Place. The rooms were decorated with smilax, ferns and other plants. Weliner, and Prof. John Towers gave a talk on voice culture. Those taking part were Mrs. Leon Bailey, Mrs. J. J.
